Art Unit: 2871

The rejections of claims 1-4 under 35 U.S.C. 112, first and second paragraphs, are withdrawn in view of Applicant's arguments that "the storage capacitance in nF is obtained by multiplying the unit storage capacitance in nF/cm² by the specified pixel area in cm²" (page 4 of the amendment dated 02/19/03). In other words, Applicant implies that the (unit) storage capacitance in nF/cm² (as disclosed in the instant specification) is obtained by dividing the common storage capacitance in nF by the specified pixel area in cm².

The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: the term "unit" of the limitation "unit storage capacitance" is not disclosed in the specification.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Yoshida et al .

Art Unit: 2871

Note Example 8 which identically disclose the claimed LCD comprising a smectic liquid crystal having spontaneous polarization of 20 nC/cm^2 , and a unit storage capacitance of 11.8 nF/cm^2 (col. 30, lines 38-60; col. 27, lines 49-65; col. 5, lines 18-22; col. 1, lines 66-67). The unit storage capacitance in nF/cm^2 is obtained by first converting Cs (2.48 pF) into nF and converting the pixel area S ($2.7 \times 10^{-4} \text{ cm}^2$) into cm^2 , then dividing Cs in nF by the pixel area S in cm^2 . $\frac{2.48}{2.1}$

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoshida et al.

Claims 2-4 additionally recite various ranges of the spontaneous polarization and the unit storage capacitance. It is noted that the claimed ranges overlap or lie inside ranges disclosed by Table 1 (col. 11) and Examples 2-4 of Yoshida et al. It has been held that in the case where the claimed ranges overlap or lie inside ranges disclosed by the prior art a prima facie case of obviousness exists. In re Wertheim, 541 F.2d 257, 191 USPQ 90 (CCPA 1976); In re Woodruff, 919 F.2d 1575, 16 USPQ2d 1934 (Fed. Cir. 1990); In re Geisler, 116 F.3d 1465, 1469-71, 43 USPQ2d 1362, 1365-66 (Fed. Cir. 1997). In addition, in the absence of unexpected results, it has been recognized that optimization of ranges disclosed by the prior art or through routine experimentation would have been obvious to a person ordinary skill in the art. In re Aller, 220

F.2d 454, 456, 105 USPQ 233, 235, (CCPA 1955). In the instant case, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to optimize the ranges disclosed by Yoshida et al for obtaining a smectic active matrix LCD with good gradational display.
